

Did COVID vaccines kill 17 million in the Southern Hemisphere?

A new report released in mid-September charges that COVID vaccines not only did not help, but caused significant harm. The report, assessing all-cause mortality in 17 Southern Hemisphere countries, found that these vaccines did not save any lives. In fact, those vaccines, especially the third and fourth booster shots, took lives – perhaps as many as 17 million.

Latest evidence against COVID vaccines

The Epoch Times Health section's Megan Redshaw reported on the study on September 28, with an update yesterday evening. Four scientists affiliated with Correlation Research in the Public Interest released the report on September 17. (Rancourt, D.G., Baudin, M., Hickey, J., Mercier, J. The study covered 17 countries on the equator or in the Southern Hemisphere. (Argentina, Australia, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Malaysia, New Zealand, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Singapore, South Africa, Suriname, Thailand, and Uruguay.) These countries include 9.10 percent of the world's population and represents 10.3 percent of injections of COVID vaccines from nearly ever manufacturer. They represent Africa, Asia, Australia, and South America.

The study found:

- No benefit from COVID vaccines, and specifically no decrease in all-cause mortality (ACM).
- All countries showed spikes in ACM with the rollout of vaccines within their borders. These countries saw spikes in ACM in Southern Hemisphere summer, which is without precedent and which no one would expect. The worst spikes happened coincident with, or shortly after, the introduction of the third or fourth booster. These findings show a definite and unshakable correlation between COVID vaccines and excess deaths.
- Vaccine-dose fatality rates (measuring how many people die from the vaccines) doubled for every four years of age. The latest booster shots are the worst in this regard.

More smoking guns

The risk of death by injection is 1000 times worse than reported in clinical trials, adverse effect reporting systems, or on death certificates. This is probably the most damning finding of all, because it suggests a deliberate cover-up by relevant health authorities. The authors make the most serious charges against the authors of the clinical trials. If only by implication, they are charging those clinical-trial authors of fudging their data. Death certificates are notorious for reporting deaths with COVID as deaths of it.

These data also agree with the finding that the majority of COVID-19 deaths in America are among the vaccinated.

Ironically, Bill Gates once said the whole world needs to “do what Australia did.” Australia is one of the countries in the present study that showed that COVID vaccines made all-cause mortality worse.
