Yesterday (6 March) the Russian Ministry of Defense presented evidence to the world that biological weapons development was taking place in Ukraine. Was – but no more, now that the Russian Army has moved in. CNAV has good reason to believe that this is only the beginning of presentations of evidence that not only excuses but fully justifies the “special military action” against Ukraine.

Biological weapons development – early rumors

Since Russia began its “special action,” rumors have swirled all over the Twitterverse and elsewhere of biological weapons development facilities, located in Ukraine, having American funding, and perhaps even having American staffs. The first such rumor surfaced on the day of the action (24 February), in Veterans Today. The editors of that publication asked, quite reasonably: what would the Russian Army find?

The rumors continued the next day. The site “Rupreparing” carried this discussion of the biological weapons development rumor. A Twitter user calling himself WarClandestine tweeted this. (Warning: foul language. Parental judgment and discretion are advised.)

- | Zelensky said the Russians are firing at “military installations”. How broad is that term?
- | I am seeing speculation that could include US installed biolabs.

Conveniently, Twitter has since suspended WarClandestine's account. But: CNAV heard a rumor, very early on, that:

1. Ukraine had eight biological weapons development facilities, all with American funding.
2. The Russian Army moved swiftly to destroy them.

Some of these rumors came from InfoWars, the streaming network that the notorious Alex Jones runs. Naturally CNAV would have to advise anyone to take them with a pound of salt, not a mere grain. But CNAV kept hearing it from sources in addition to Alex Jones' InfoWars. Today the Ministry of Defense has confirmed it.

Further accusations

First, Twitter might have suspended WarClandestine's account. But the replies to his tweet remain. Here is an instructive sample:

High. Many Americans work for companies in Ukraine.

I already knew about this. Came across something about it a few weeks ago. Supposedly the US has 5 biolabs in Ukraine and another 20 in various other countries. There were near misses and accidents when they did these tests in their own lab so it was moved.

However, I hadn't considered that the situation there now might be connected to these labs. Research, research, research leads to more knowledge. I love research so yes. I knew.

A simple question. Why is Russia actually invading Ukraine? The main reason behind the invasion is.....?

— DarkKnight (@iamshinerk) February 24, 2022

Why indeed did Russia actually move into Ukraine? In fact, the U.S. Embassy in Ukraine admits that it maintains “threat reduction assets.”

In Ukraine, the program’s aim is to consolidate and secure pathogens and toxins of security concerns and provide support to the nation in detecting and reporting outbreaks caused by dangerous pathogens before they “pose any stability or security risks.”

In 2019, BTRP established two laboratories for the Consumer Protection Service of Ukraine with Biosafety Level 2 in Kyiv and Odesa. Both regions are under Russia’s attack. The US not only provides support for laboratory establishment but has also been funding research projects in Ukraine where the Ukrainian and American scientists work together.

There you have it! American funding and American staffing! As Russia has long accused. This article also mentions the notorious Peter Daszak. That name has turned up before in CNAV’s research into coronavirus and its origins. Your editor has mentioned him, as has Darrell L. Castle. Does anyone remember EcoHealth Alliance? Daszak heads it.

The confirmation

The confirmation of Ukrainian biological weapons development laboratories has rolled in for the last four days. First to report it was Breitbart, on 3 March. Other reports rolled in yesterday. See here, here, here, here, and here.

BREAKING. 🚨

Russia claims it has evidence of U.S.-funded 'biological weapons' research in Ukraine. ▼ <https://t.co/kF6RquKg9M>

I will add that there is no strong evidence of U.S. funded "bioweapons" research in Ukraine. But the U.S. embassy in Ukraine lists biological "threat reduction" laboratories, similar to the ones the U.S. funded in Wuhan. The readers can draw their own conclusions.

These last tweets tell a tale of sanitization – meaning, cover-up. Kyle Becker, the source for the first two tweets, provided translations of the documents now in Russian hands. One can expect a Russian general officer to construe the documents in the most dire way possible. But how else can one construe “biological threat reduction programs” that close to Russia itself?

These are the documents which the US Embassy does not want you to see:

Conclusion: biological weapons development did take place

We already know that SARS-CoV-2 came from a laboratory with American funding. And CNAV repeats: the Russian Defense Ministry confirmed what CNAV had already heard.

Which means: we have our own government nailed to the wall, dead-to-rights. (Or however one says it in idiomatic Russian.) This alone would justify a “special military action,” to neutralize the threat. To play around with pathogens is inexcusable. It is bad medicine, bad public policy – and worse foreign policy when one conducts it in a foreign country.

This is exactly the sort of program the Deep State would invent. In fact, now that SARS-CoV-2 has mutated to a non-virulent form, the Deep State needed something new. Maybe they hoped to get it from one of these labs. They will get it no more.

Update

This hour-long video explains the connection of Biden, Pelosi, the Clintons, and even Senator Lindsay Graham (R-S.C.) to whatever is happening in Ukraine. Included: clear evidence that Nancy Pelosi herself, through that weird hand gesture, signaled an order to attempt an assassination of Vladimir Putin. Why? Because he is destroying biological weapons development facilities. Their facilities.
